KEEP THE PRESS FREE.

ONE of the complications in negotiating a code for newspapers under the NRA is the difficulty of giving the government complete control over the production of newspapers and yet, at the same time, protecting the constitutional freedom of the press so that a government would not be able to coerce the newspapers and prevent the printing of adverse news or editorials.

A free press is absolutely necessary for the protection of the American people. Every agency should be open for citizens to know the truth about any economic or political situation. As Dean Carl Ackerman, of the Columbia School of Journalism, said recently, "there can be no effective substitute for the free and complete publication of news and editorials even when they are unfavorable to the government."

While the great majority of American citizens are intensely anxious that the NRA program succeed, there are some thoughtful ones who do not relish the plan of General Johnson to stir up emotional intolerance against hesitating individuals, because this unhealthy condition would result in oppression and unfounded punishment oftentimes. Government should be based upon reason, not upon emotion; the necessary laws should be passed to accomplish the process of government rather than resort to stirring up emotions through widespread, dynamic propaganda.

LITTLE DETAILS.

A NOTORIOUS criminal was located and captured in Texas, charged with the kidnapping of an oil millionaire, as a result of several little occurrences noted and reported by his victim.

When Charles F. Urschel was freed after the payment of a large ransom he had no idea where he had been held captive. However, he had noticed that an airplane regularly passed over his prison at certain times twice each day. Further than that, he had particularly noticed that on a certain day the plane did not come by as usual.

From this information the authorities knew that his prison had been located along some commercial airplane route, which narrowed the search considerably. Checking aerial time tables eliminated various possible sections. Checking the records of one aerial route it was found that on the particular day mentioned by the kidnapped victim the pilot had reported having had to change his course considerably at a certain locality on account of a bad storm. This narrowed the ground to be searched sufficiently that the hiding place of the kidnappers was discovered and they were captured.

Little details like this are usually, responsible for the arrest and imprisonment of many criminals who would otherwise escape detection and punishment. Being observant is worthwhile.

AN OPPORTUNITY IS OFFERED.

IT is a significant fact that recent reports from all parts of the country show growing increases in residential construction.

The meaning of that is clear. The three-year construction doldrum—in which home building was close to the non-existent point—has reached its end. The nation, instead of having an over-supply of homes, actually has a shortage, placed by various observers at around 500,000. Factories are opening up, men are going back to work, families are enlarging their budgets. And home-building always comes high on the list at such times.

Residential construction and maintenance, on a nation-wide scale, The Echo contends, is going to be an important factor in speeding recovery. And the wise property-owner will see the handwriting on the wall. Higher prices for materials and supplies of all kinds are going to be here before we know it. The cost indexes have started up now—and they're moving fast. The long era of bargains is nearing its end. It really is the last chance to buy at depression prices.

So the property-owner has a double opportunity—to build and repair before costs sky-rocket, and to do his bit in promoting recovery by spending money for labor and supplies. Don't let that opportunity pass!

TURNED TO GOLD.

BACK in March, during the banking crisis, President Roosevelt prohibited the withdrawal of gold from banks and called upon all citizens who had possessed the precious metal to return it. Their attention was called to the law which provides penalties of imprisonment and fine for hoarding gold.

A large number of our citizens voluntarily carried their gold back to the banks but there were about five thousand persons in the list of those who had withdrawn gold and failed to return it when the Department of Justice began its campaign to secure obedience to law. Most of these have surrendered their hoard but, according to last reports, there were nearly three hundred people holding about $845,000 which they refused to give up.

Legal action against these hoarders is expected in the near future. While the amount of money being held is comparatively small, as millions and millions were returned, the Government does not intend to allow those who violate the law to get by.

GET READY FOR SCHOOL.

APPROXIMATELY 30,000,000 children ranging from near-graduates to kindergartners, will converge on our streets and highways this September, all approaching central points. Through the summer they have been scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land; now they are to be mobilized, crossing our city thoroughfares or country lanes in long lines going to school or coming home.

It is the solemn duty of every motorist to see to it that these youngsters have a safe passage. By following a few simple rules, he can help cut down the toll of 3,400 children killed and 152,550 injured in 1932. Every motorist should remember to approach a school zone with care; to slow down at all intersections; to watch his speed on curves in the country. Above all, he should look out for the unexpected. Children who meet after two months' separation, become so absorbed that they forget about the danger of dashing into the roadway, darting from behind parked cars, or trying to retrieve a ball from under the fender of a moving vehicle. The motorist must do their thinking for them.

The reduction in motor accidents to children of school age in the United States, is the brightest picture in the safety movement, but there still remains much to be done to further reduce the number of tragedies—90 per cent of which are avoidable. Educators, school authorities and teachers constantly emphasize the dangers of modern traffic conditions, to the children. The one person able to bring about great improvement is the motorist. He should drive at all times as he would if his child were out in that crowd ahead.

Business recovery in Bay St. Louis depends largely upon where the people spend their money.

LOCAL SPIRIT ALIVE.

YOU can find community spirit everywhere when money is moving easily and business is booming. Good times produce boosters galore but many of them are insincere, merely hopping on the band wagon to take a ride.

There was evident throughout the United States a few years ago much of this ignorant boasting. It was the thing! Moreover, being what everybody was doing, it was overdone.

Not so long ago, however, the days of easy profits passed and the sky threatened a storm, which later broke and the financial devastation was alarming. Many of the fair weather optimists took to cover and haven't been heard from yet.

There was evident throughout the United vicinity. What did we have five years ago that we have lost? What natural asset has vanished?

Let's analyze the situation in Bay St. Louis and before 1920? Are those factors abolished by some new law of mankind or of nature?

The answer to these questions must reveal that Bay St. Louis today has the same opportunity for development that she had ten years ago.

Fact of the matter is that the true booster of Bay St. Louis retains his inherent faith in the natural and positive advantages that are not obliterated, however they may be affected by the price of crops and temporary shutdowns of industrial plants. There is no reason for any clear-thinking, honest advocate of progress to lose hope, to give away to despair and join the panic-stricken brethren in singing a dirge.

The future possibilities of Bay St. Louis are just as good as ever. It rests upon the character of the people who live here. They may be somewhat discouraged, they may be a little bit weary of the battle, but they will respond to proper leadership and make a fight of it. The time is close at hand, we think, for the people of this community to reassert their established gift for mutual helpfulness, generous cooperation and unselfish service in the common good.

We have nothing particular in mind in writing this. No project or campaign is in our imagination today. When the proper time comes we look confidently to a sensible reassertion of the old Bay St. Louis spirit. It's here and it's alive, we think.

There is no use to pay too much attention to the gloomy advocates of pessimism. They are with us always. They moan and bemoan. Leave them alone. Don't waste time in argument with them. Let them cherish whatever thoughts they may have without expecting any help from their kind. They never made a city or a community or a people, even, if occasionally, some of them make money. If we have no sums of money let us have the spirit, at least.

AN AMAZING BOND SCANDAL.

KANSAS, amazed at bond forgery scandals, should find comfort in the attitude of Governor Alfred N. Landon, who insists that when the investigation is complete "no one will be able to point a finger at any spot in the sorry mess and say that the white wash has been applied to it."

The revelations, as printed in newspapers, involve an ally of many political backers of the governor. Amazing as it seems, eight bond issues, totalling $329,000 were forged in duplicate. One set was sold to the State School Fund Commission at par. Another set was put in the State Treasury as collateral for deposits placed in banks. A third set was used in Chicago to back up the market operations of one Ronald Finney, now under arrest. Mr. Finney, it seems, was a person of apparent means, having varied connections with certain state officials.

The above paragraph gives only an idea of the scandal. It is charged that when $150,000 of forged federal bonds were discovered in a Topeka bank, a state official deposited $150,000 in a Finney bank so that the speculator could borrow that amount and that another $150,000 in bonds were loaned to Finney in order to go to Chicago and get the money with which to pay back the loan.

Governor Landon, a young Republican, is apparently fearless and patriotic. He ordered the arrest of Finney; put national guardsmen in the office of the Treasurer and called the legislative council into session to impeach all officials who might be involved and announced that every big fish must be caught and brought to justice even though a lot of minnows might be allowed to escape. In fairness, it should be stated that the Treasurer denies any wrong doing whatever.

GET READY FOR SCHOOL.

APPROXIMATELY 30,000,000 children ranging from near-graduates to kindergartners, will converge on our streets and highways this September, all approaching central points. Through the summer they have been scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land; now they are to be mobilized, crossing our city thoroughfares or country lanes in long lines going to school or coming home.

It is the solemn duty of every motorist to see to it that these youngsters have a safe passage. By following a few simple rules, he can help cut down the toll of 3,400 children killed and 152,550 injured in 1932. Every motorist should remember to approach a school zone with care; to slow down at all intersections; to watch his speed on curves in the country. Above all, he should look out for the unexpected. Children who meet after two months' separation, become so absorbed that they forget about the danger of dashing into the roadway, darting from behind parked cars, or trying to retrieve a ball from under the fender of a moving vehicle. The motorist must do their thinking for them.

The reduction in motor accidents to children of school age in the United States, is the brightest picture in the safety movement, but there still remains much to be done to further reduce the number of tragedies—90 per cent of which are avoidable. Educators, school authorities and teachers constantly emphasize the dangers of modern traffic conditions, to the children. The one person able to bring about great improvement is the motorist. He should drive at all times as he would if his child were out in that crowd ahead.

Business recovery in Bay St. Louis depends largely upon where the people spend their money.

CONSUMPTION.

A MAN today, using the best modern machinery, can do as much work in about fifteen minutes as he could in as many hours a century ago. With the forty-four hour week, or even with the thirty-six hour week, he can, and does, produce far more than anybody knows how to use.

There was evident throughout the United States a few years ago much of this ignorant boasting. It was the thing! Moreover, being what everybody was doing, it was overdone.

Not so long ago, however, the days of easy profits passed and the sky threatened a storm, which later broke and the financial devastation was alarming. Many of the fair weather optimists took to cover and haven't been heard from yet.

There was evident throughout the United vicinity. What did we have five years ago that we have lost? What natural asset has vanished?

Let's analyze the situation in Bay St. Louis and before 1920? Are those factors abolished by some new law of mankind or of nature?

The answer to these questions must reveal that Bay St. Louis today has the same opportunity for development that she had ten years ago.

Fact of the matter is that the true booster of Bay St. Louis retains his inherent faith in the natural and positive advantages that are not obliterated, however they may be affected by the price of crops and temporary shutdowns of industrial plants. There is no reason for any clear-thinking, honest advocate of progress to lose hope, to give away to despair and join the panic-stricken brethren in singing a dirge.

The future possibilities of Bay St. Louis are just as good as ever. It rests upon the character of the people who live here. They may be somewhat discouraged, they may be a little bit weary of the battle, but they will respond to proper leadership and make a fight of it. The time is close at hand, we think, for the people of this community to reassert their established gift for mutual helpfulness, generous cooperation and unselfish service in the common good.

We have nothing particular in mind in writing this. No project or campaign is in our imagination today. When the proper time comes we look confidently to a sensible reassertion of the old Bay St. Louis spirit. It's here and it's alive, we think.

WINTER GRAZING CROPS.

THE time for seeding winter grazing crops will soon be here. Now is the time to assemble all such seed that they may be available for sowing at the proper time.

With no less evidence than the actual fact that feed prices have already rapidly advanced within the past few weeks, and also that reports reaching this office from points over the state indicate a shortage of feed crops, it seems quite apparent that farmers and livestock owners, who haven't sufficient feed for their animals, could not use their time this fall to better advantage than to arrange for winter grazing crops for their livestock.

For winter grazing and pasture, we would suggest planting either Italian or Northern Grown Domestic Rye Grass.

This grass furnished more grazing where planted on permanent pasture sod this past winter than the crops planted on cultivated lands, for the continuous rains during the winter months kept the cultivated fields too wet for much grazing. The Extension Dairy Division says, "It is the safest, most dependable winter and early spring grazing crop that can be grown, especially in the Southern portion of the State."

If planted in September on pasture sod when the ground is moist, it will furnish grazing from November to the following June, provided the winter is not too severe. It will grow in the pasture along with other grasses and not interfere with their growth unless too heavy seeding is made.

Directions for Planting.

Broadcast 15 pounds per acre on fairly fertile to fertile pasture land. To make sure the seed gets to the soil, it is suggested that a harrow or disc be run over the pasture. In case a disc is used, do not allow it to turn the sod over. Plant only when the land is moist and keep stock off until the plants are about six inches high. Plans should be made to plant one acre to each mature animal as overgrazing any pasture will injure growth and carrying capacity. It is a good practice to keep all stock off of pasture during extremely wet weather.

Winter Grazing Crops for Cultivated Lands.

Oats seeded at the rate of 2 to 2½ bushels per acre of the Red Rust Proof variety, or Abruzzi Rye seeded at the rate of 6 to 8 pecks per acre sown in late September or early October provides good grazing on cultivated land during the winter and also helps to prevent soil washing from the heavy rainfall during the winter months. An application of 250 to 300 pounds per acre of 4-8-4 commercial fertilizer before seed are sown will greatly increase the amount and quality of grazing.

Winter grazing helpful toward increasing Spring calf crop. Owners of breeding cattle will find it to their advantage to provide a good winter pasture for their animals. Because of the poor grazing last winter the calf crop in the spring was far short of what it should have been, and where the percent of calves run no higher than it did in some herds the owner lost heavily on his investment. Let's avoid this loss next spring by providing winter pasture, and also follow this up by preparing land during the winter months to be seeded

IMPROVEMENTS.

If you don't believe it come to the Beach Estate, and watch the home, under construction for Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberger of New Orleans, who will remain over the winter. This is the seventh house built in the past six weeks.

Mr. Sutter, the expert driller is kept busy putting down artesian wells, just completed one in Trace, and now working on one in Coleman avenue. Mr. Sutter says if Waveland keeps on with this rapid stride, we will be forced to put down more wells. Mr. Sutter is an authority on water supply, having put wells down all over the country and knows what he is talking about.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wenar of Atlanta, Ga., have leased the palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Nix, for the winter. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Nix and lovely family have moved to New Orleans to make their home. The removal of this family will mean a great loss to our community.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Forcille visited at the home of Mrs. Daugington.

Mrs. J. O. Farrar has been the house guest of Mrs. E. Schwartz for the past few weeks.

ON THE BEACHES
AT OCEAN PARK AND SANTA MONICA, CAL.

Former Bay Resident Writes
Of Events and Incidents
To Visit Orange Groves

Ocean Park, Calif.,
August 20, 1933.

TOWARDS the end of July a Bath-Beauty Contest was held in the auditorium. It was so crowded, that everyone stopped on the benches. There were a great number of contestants.

The final awards were given on the pier. So there was a rush for places. About 30 were given tickets for shows. The prettiest bathing suit—a white one modest low back won $10.00. The most personality—a dark-haired vivacious girl, not too modest—prize $15.00. The 1st prize was winner to compete for "Miss America", was awarded to a medium-sized; brown curly hair and blue eyes. Dark blue suit and modest style. Many others were noticeably attractive.

On August 6th "Ole Man Depression" was buried. He was covered with a black cloth and set fire to on the pier and what was left, placed on a chute and pushed into the Ocean. Where he floated about and I don't know what became of him.

On August 13th there was a contest of men bathing beauties. Not nearly so many as the girls. They all had good figures and nearly all wore only trunks. The first prize was won by a nice-looking man in a blue bathing suit.

The personality prize was given to real charming fellow in white trunks. He spoke into the Radio. I didn't see the most original suit.

The beaches are a mass of umbrellas on Saturdays and Sundays. I saw a good show. A woman got into a small bank, like a box, and a man thrusts swords through the box—all over it. I looked inside, before she got out, and she was huddled up and the swords really were all about her.

The ponies to ride are cute; some are slow and seagulls perch on the top of the adjoining building, squawk contentedly at the ponies and their riders.

I enjoyed a treat when I went to see Stephen Haddon. Presented by the Santa Monica Art League. Modern and primitive dancer in concert.

Night Phobia (Fear of the Dark.)

The costumes were beautiful. He's handsome, dark, good figure.

There was a Pescussion accompanist (Drum) also a piano player between numbers. I was particularly interested as he is a descendant of a well-known New Orleans family—I'm sure they would smile as they turned in their graves, if they could see the fine dancer he has become, by right as his mother and grand-mother were both dancers. The Haddons were strict presbyterian.

MISSISSIPPI CONGRESS PARENTS AND TEACHERS TO BE AT HATTIESBURG

October From 4 to 6th—"Community's Debt to Every Child" to Be Theme of Convention—Child's Welfare Paramount Subject.

A convention that will be of practical help to every delegate will be the 24th Annual Convention of the Mississippi Congress of Parents and Teachers to be held in Hattiesburg, October 4-6. Instead of a predominance of the usual formal convention addresses most of the time will be devoted to conferences and discussions of the actual problems and needs of the delegates interested in the organization and administration of local parent-teacher associations.

The theme of the convention will be "The Community's Debt to Every Child." What is due the handicapped child and what is being done in Mississippi for the deaf, blind, tubercular, etc., will be discussed by experts. The normal child, his health and education, will also be presented. Problems arising out of the present educational crisis will be considered in developing the theme.

"Don't forget," says an announcement that this is election year. Be sure that your dues have been paid or otherwise you cannot vote. Have any local candidate to put up? If so, be ready to nominate her or him on Wednesday afternoon when

TO YOUTH.

How beautiful is youth,
In strength and splendor clad;
Seeking always the Truth,
In freedom bright and glad.

How trusting are the young,
Life's song in tinkling breast;
A riddle spelt upon their tongue,
Dropt in a golden nest.

God guard their innocence,
Wondering in blissful dream;
Youth's sword in heat intense,
Drawn taut in Heaven's gleam.

O! Spare youth's passion—pain,
Caught in fool sin and woe;
Urge them God's crown to gain;
Tho' madly tempests blow.

O Youth so lovely and so frail,
Ride onneath Hope's bright star;
In Death, bright dawn but hail,
Heaven beckons afar.
